

What's What in Titles of Classical Music... and beyond

A Dictionary of Titles by François Verschaeve

THIRD EDITION

What is the original title in German of Mozart's A Little Night Music? Who composed the music of Evita? And who was Evita? In Concierto de Aranjuez by Rodrigo, what is Aranjuez? What is Mozartiana? What does Vangoghiana refer to? And over 85 other titles ending in ...iana? Who articulated the concept of The Four Freedoms? And what are they? And who wrote a piece about them? Name the muse of music... and of dance... and composers who used the names of these muses as titles. Who wrote the novel on which the musical The Phantom of the Opera is based? On which Shakespeare's play did Bernstein base his musical West Side Story?

What's What in Titles of Classical Music... and beyond is much more than a "standard" repertoire of mostly Western classical music titles for the past five centuries. In a short paragraph for each title, entries may include its source, explanation or translation for foreign titles, name of composer, musical form, number or order of composition, movements, parts, key signature, opus number, catalogue number, year of composition or publication, additional comments or cross-references.

- List of over 20,000 titles
- Index of 2,500 composers
- Index of 2,800 names of authors, poets, librettists, artists, historical characters...
- Numerous cross-references
- Source or explanation of titles
- Translation of foreign language titles
- User's guide and explanatory notes in French, German, Italian and Spanish

From the many explanations, translations and cross-references included for many titles in a variety of languages, it is as much a multilingual reference as a musical dictionary.

Guide d'emploi et notes explicatives en français
Hinweise zum Gebrauch und erklärende
Anmerkungen in Deutsch
Guida alla consultazione e note esplicative in italiano
Guía para el uso y notas explicativas en español

François Verschaeve works as an English-French translator for Girard Translation Service, a firm established in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. He loves music. For over thirty years, he has arduously researched and compiled this useful collection of classical music titles, now in its third edition.

Life is less without music.
F. V.

*François' occupation
Is accurate translation.
And believe it, with music,
He's encyclopedic.*
Herbert Richard Anderson
1916–2005

ISBN 978-0-9738454-2-6

